Hi all,

Below is an article that has appeared in several publications. I feel that it is important in these troubling times. We still need to feel good about ourselves!

New Life for an Old Wardrobe Image Consultant Helps Clients Save Money During Tough Times

As clothing store sales dwindle under the current economy, Orene Kearn is out to prove that being in style doesn't have to be an expensive task. Under the current economic crisis, women and men are cutting back on spending in any way they can, especially when it comes to clothes shopping. Orene, a certified image and wardrobe consultant in San Francisco, understands this need to cut back and developed an affordable Closet Audit program to help people find new life in an old wardrobe.

“Even when Money is tight, it is important to present a sharp, appropriate sense of style and to look and feel your best, said Orene. “With my new Closet Audit, I help clients discover the potential that already exists in their current wardrobes.”

Many people assume image consulting is a luxury service that only the wealthy can afford, but Orene believes image consulting can actually help clients save money. Instead of regularly spending on clothing items in an attempt to stay current with fashion trends, Orene suggests evaluating items in the closet to find what works. “Instead of buying a whole new wardrobe, invest in an image consultant who can help determine what is in style, what looks good, what doesn't and which pieces are needed to complete the wardrobe.”

On Orene's newly launched Web site, she offers a Renewal Package with four hours of personal image consulting services to help clients learn their style profile and examine their current wardrobe. The package costs only $250 and includes a fit and style analysis, lifestyle and personality wardrobe assessment, wardrobe building strategies, weeding through the closet and removing items that no longer work, clearing out past mistakes, finding out where to alter existing pieces, creating great new outfits using the existing wardrobe, prioritizing items needed to fill in and creating an affordable shopping game plan.

“After my Closet Audit, clients often feel a sense of renewal, accomplishment and relief,” said Orene. “It helps find new life in older clothes, encourages them to get rid of clothes they don't need or wear and help them realize they don't need to spend a fortune to revamp their style.”

Orene is based in Burlingame, California and offers a variety of image consulting services to customers in the Bay Area. A complete list of her services and rates can be found online at www.orene.net.
