UNIQUELY YOU
CELEBRATE THE SEASON IN STYLE
2010

Dear Orene,

I hope you had a wonderful Thanksgiving. I wish you a joyful and peaceful holiday season.

I want to share this quote by Mary Kay Ash, "While clothes may not make the woman, they certainly have a strong effect on her self-confidence - which, I believe, does make the woman." Here are some style tips to help you celebrate the good times and increase your self-confidence!

Need help finding the right gift? Think about giving my gift certificates. Remember, guys like these gift certificates too.

Enjoy!

Celebrate Good Times, Come On!

It's that time of year again - where eggnog is plentiful, sugar cookies glisten, and fashion becomes bedazzled. Let the festivities begin! We don't always get the chance to dress up in glam and glitz so let's not miss this opportunity. Be as sparkly as a holiday ornament - but that doesn't mean you should wear one. That's right - no sweaters that make you look like a Christmas tree (or Hanukkah bush). Instead, stand out and look fabulous being the most stunning version of you. This holiday season let's stray away from the expected and explore the unexpected options in dressing for the occasion. Celebrate and rock the party in some of these tempting holiday looks.

What's expected?

You have that perfect Little Black Dress that works for every holiday party or special event you attend.

What's less expected?

This year try a different tactic. Instead of wearing the LBD, shop for a really great piece that will be versatile in your wardrobe long after the holidays. Try a fancy elegant blouse in a rich color or a luxurious fabric like satin. Pair it with a high-waisted pencil skirt. The blouse will not only be a hit for your office party but you'll wear it for so many occasions to follow. Or make your special piece a fancy party pant. Simple elegant pants are waiting for you in lace, satin or a pretty print. A simple sweater or knit top will let your pants closet in a new way. Being busy doesn't always allow you time for shopping. Or, perhaps you don't know where to shop to maximize your dollar - where to get the best quality items for less. Wouldn't it be helpful to have an expert who can help you with all of this?

Let's chat to discuss your particular situation and explore your challenges and goals. Please send me an email at orene@orene.net and I'll be in touch to set up a time.

look as festive as a lovely wrapped present.

What's expected?

You pull out the black satin high-heeled pumps you always wear when you want to dress up.

What's less expected?

Try the unexpected flat with the just-right details. Look for ones that have jeweled ornamentation, ribbons, bows or sequins. As long as they're making a party statement, these will keep focused on fun while enjoying comfort. Everyone else will be looking for the closest chair to rest their partied out feet while you twirl around on the dance floor.

What's expected?

Wearing the classic red and green combo.

What's less expected?

Take the red and green theme and twist it just a little. Go with a burnished olive green and deep orange combo. If this warm color combo sounds unflattering to you, try pomegranate red and a deep emerald green. No need to overdue it. You can subtly weave in these colors through your accessories, shoes or handbags while sticking to neutral colored clothing.

What's expected?

You decorate your body like you decorate your house - with images of Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer in a pin that blinks on and off, or you wear mini Christmas light necklace. Ready for a change?

What's less expected?

Leave the lights and the reindeer to the kids and wear grown up holiday jewelry. Bring out your sparkly chandelier earrings. Dig out your sparkly broaches and add one or even three to your winter coat. Bring out your pearls and layer them on - the more the merrier. Remember, a little extra glitz goes a long way when dressing for the holidays.

What's expected?

You have a handbag for dress up and this is what you'll add for any holiday party you're invited to.

What's less expected?

Try the unexpected and bring out a vintage one - one that is beaded, embroidered, or jeweled. Or look for one in a color other than black as long as it sparkles or has sheen. Vintage handbags will set you apart in the crowd, look unique and be a great conversation piece.

If you're having trouble getting in the spirit and need a little help pulling a festive outfit together, don't worry - we can do it together. I'm just a phone call away. I can have you ready to be the life of the party in no time. Don't let the celebrations pass you by. Get in the mood and get in the outfit that will help you create great memories forever.
